

Working and Living in Europe

A guide for young people

Welcome to our publication 'Working and Living in Europe: A guide for young people' compiled by Eurodesk Ireland in cooperation with Irish Youth Information Centres and Eurodesk national offices throughout Europe.

Eurodesk is a free information service providing young people and those who work with them with information on EU funding and opportunities to work, study, volunteer and travel in Europe. In Ireland, the Eurodesk office is based in Léargas. For further information contact Malgorzata Fiedot-Davies at eurodesk@leargas.ie or (+353) (0)1 872 2394.

The aim of this publication is to provide basic information for young people who intend to work and live in another European country. Further country-specific information is available from the local Youth Information providers and national Eurodesk offices whose websites are listed in each country profile along with useful websites for job-seekers.

Readers should be aware that the living costs mentioned are approximate only and are subject to change. Information on minimum wage, entry requirements and other legal requirements is correct at the time of going to print but should be checked with the Embassy or Consulate of the relevant country before travelling. For your convenience, costs are referred to in Euro rather than local currencies. Readers should be aware that exchange rates are approximate and liable to fluctuate.

A special thank-you to Giuliano Astore, Emanuela Di Lalla and Alicia McGrath who helped compile the information contained in this booklet during their internships with Eurodesk Ireland.

Requirements for young Irish people to live and work here...

Irish nationals must have a valid passport to enter Belgium. Irish citizens do not need a work permit; however, if you intend to work in Belgium or to stay for more than three months you must apply for a residence permit at the local Commune or Town Hall within eight days of arrival. A valid passport and three passport photos are generally required. Some communes may request a birth certificate; proof of your civil status; proof of adequate means for the duration of your stay or that your return journey is secured. There may be a small fee. The authorities will check that you are residing at the address you have given. A residence permit is valid for three months initially but can be renewed if proof of employment and registration with the relevant social security scheme can be produced.

Liechtenstein

Requirements for young Irish people to live and work here...

EU citizens require a valid passport for entry into Liechtenstein and do not require a work permit.

A certain number of residence permits are granted directly and through a ballot procedure. Irish young people may qualify for a short-stay permit or a residence permit. A short-stay permit (L) allows entry to Liechtenstein to take up employment for a maximum of 12 months. A residence permit (B) may be issued upon proof of employment. It may also be granted if you can prove you have sufficient financial resources to support yourself, health and accident insurance, a personal connection to Liechtenstein and that it is your intention to move your domestic base permanently to Liechtenstein.
